Project Title: Coco

I would like this website to have multiple pages, divided into categories with a navigation bar at the top/ at the side leading to each category. The website should visually incorporate elements of the Latino Culture with the themes of the film such as eternity, importance of a family, and power of music. I imagine a website that also visually matches the overall feels of the promotional poster without having it too busy.

Categories:

Intro – General information about the film

Plot – The storyline of the movie

Cast – A list of the casted actors – Tie them together in a way that would display the power of family; it doesn't have to be a column list although it should have some hierarchy between the main characters and not-so-important

Production – Includes subsections of development, story, casting, animation, and music and soundtrack.

Sources – List of sources used, including the Wikipedia page
